Funerals Held and to Be Held.

The funeral of Mr. Hiram Oliver, whose death was announced in the Disparch of vesterday, will take place this morning at it o'clock from Leigh-Street Baptist church. The deceased was a native of Caroline county, but had long been a resident of Church Hill. He was especially well known in tobacco circles from his connection with the factory of T. C. Williams and afterwards with the T. C. Williams Tobacco Company.

On behalf of the trustees it was insisted that the debts due previous to the failure were a part of the general assets which came to their hands and not the special Virginia assets. They were entirely willing to make monthly statements of their business, and to give counsel access to their bank account, but they insisted that in paying a large number of small purchases which they were obliged to make, they living in Boston could not conveniently pay the northern persons or firms with whom they dealt with checks upon Richmond.

The Judge suggested that the attaching creditors would be made safe if they would deposit to their credit in Richmond would deposit to their credit in Richmona a weekly or semi-monthly balance which might be in their hands. This they were willing to do, but it did not seem to satisfy the gentlemen who made the mo-tion, and who, while professing full confi-dence in the integrity and competency of the trustees, insisted that moneys kept in Massachusetts might be claimed and im-nounded there.

The trustees stated in open court that they would be unwilling to attempt to give Virginia security upon any bond which might be required of them by the Court, and it such bond were required it would result in their giving up the trust and closing the business at once.

The court adjourned without counsel comine to any agreement, and in order coming to any agreement, and in order that an opportunity may be had to ar-range the matter its consideration was Banking Business in Brazil.

Advices received at Newport News through Purser J. St. Chair flunt, of the United States Brazilian mail steamship Seguranca, bring intelligence of Mr. C. H. Chapin, formerly of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company, and for a considerable period located in this city.

Mr. Chapin, fired by a spirit of adventure and having a desire to see something of the South American countries, left here about two years before the revolution in Brazil for that country. He sailed in the steamer Alliance from Newport News for Rio Janeiro, and it was reported at the time that his trip was made in the interest of a great American syndicate interested in an extensive scheme of steamship lines and internal improvements in Brazil. However this may be, nothing was heard of him up to the time that the Emperor Dom Pedro was dethroned and the republican government established over the former imperial dominions

Soon after the overthrow a rumor reached this city va London and New York that Mr. Chapin had been one of the leading revolutionists against the empire, and that his services had been not only recognized, but that suitable rewards were offered him by the newly-created republican Government. These he declined, being averse to holding public office, and having only given his services to the infantile republic from motives of pure patriotism alone. Since then, it seems, he retired from public life, and is now engaged in a private banking business in the city of Rio Janerio.

The Emperor's ride lasted until 9 o'clock, when he returned to Buckingham Palace, and in company with the Empress received deputations from various German social and benevolent societies of London. The Emperor received these deputations in the most courteous manner, patiently listened to their addresses of welcome, and briefly replied to them. replied to them.

THE EMPEROR CHARMS HIS VISITORS.

After the ceremonious portion of the visits had been gone through satisfactorily the Emperor chatted freely and pleasantly with the delegates, who were charmed with the young ruler's frank, open behavior. Later in the morning the Emperor received a deputation consisting of a number of German army-reserve officers who are engaged in business in this and other cities of England, and who consequently make their home in this country while remaining loyal to Germany and being willing to obey any call to rejoin their standards should the war-trumpet summon Germany to arms.

These German officers were all attired in the full uniform of their respective corps and presented a somewhat strange and unusual appearance in the balls of Buckingtham Palace. The Emperor received his soldiers as cheerfully and pleasantly as he had previously received his citizen subjects and exchanged a few words with each officer in the deputation, having something to say to all in regard to their regiments, brother officers in Germany, changes in the service, and the like.

Two Important Forgery Cases.

The proceedings of the Hustings Court promise to be quite interesting to-day.

"Fil tell you one very satisfactory test.
Slocum was praying when he died. So was Wood. The others said nothing. But I particularly observed Slocum. He was saving, 'Lord, have mercy on my soul' when he received the shock. He had just said the word 'my' and started to say 'soul.' The sibilant sound of the 's' was made, but the word 'soul' was never uttered. The syllable was cut in two."
"ANOTHER INDICATION." "ANOTHER INDICATION,"

"ANOTHER INDICATION."

continued Dr. Southwick, "was the appearance of the men's features at death. They were undisturbed. I suggested that they should close their eyes, so that the sait water from the electrode on their foreheads should not run into their eyes and give them needless pain. They did close their eyes. That action made a certain contraction of the features. That contraction was there after the men were taken from the chair. There was not a single person who saw the executions but said they were instantaneous and painless and a humane method of producing death. Sixteen hundred volts were given."

AN UNQUALIFED SUCCESS. AN UNQUALIFED SUCCESS.

"The executions were an unqualified success in every way" said Dr. Daniels. "The men had no sensibility of pain and they died instantly. The executions demonstrated that the electric method is quick, painless, and humane. There were no sounds, no burning, no odor of burning fiesh, nathing whatever that would revolt any spectator."

Dr. Daniels also speke of one of the men praying and reaching the hissing sound of "s" when the shock came. "It cut the syllable in two," he said; "not another sound came from him. I look upon that as a supreme test."

She was twenty-four years of age when she made her debut on the stage and achieved success, becoming principal support in stock companies.

The Chilean Insurgents' Day. The Chilean Insurgents' Day.
Waspington. July 3.—The representatives of the Chilean Congressional party in Washington late to-night received a cable-gram from Iquique signed by Errazuriz, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, saying in effect that the army of Balmaceda, which was advancing from Coquimbo to the Valley of Huasco, was met by the Constitutional army at a point four leagues south of Vallenar, where an engagement took place to-day. The Constitutional army, the dispatch says, obtained a brilliant triumph.

A Run Amuck and Death.

Sayannah, Ga., July 8.—Osnus Lee (colored) ran amuck in the eastern part of the city to-night and attempted to kill half a dozen people, among the number Policeman Andrew Clayton, whom he shot twice through the body. Policeman Neidlinger ran to the rescue, and as he came up Lee snapped an empty pistol in his face, having emptied the chamber in attempting to kill Clayton. Neidlinger returned the fire, killing Lee instantly with a bullet through the heart.

These were enrolled and then the association adjourned. After supper ex-Governor Robert L. Taylor delivered an eloquent address of welcome on behalf of the State of Tennessee, and Captain H. S. Chamberlain delivered a bright and witty address of welcome on behalf of the city of Chattanooga. Responses were delivered by various gentlemen. Following these addresses Miss Clara Conway, of Memphis, read an interesting paper—subject: "A Iniversity for Southern Girls." After the annual address of President Shinn the association adjourned until to-morrow.

RICHMOND, VA., July 8, 1891.

To the Editor of the Dispatch:
Petitions to the City Council and Judge protesting against the establishing of a brewery in Blenner's Park were freely circulated and numerously signed in this section of the city, and handed to a member of the Council by the Rev. S. C. Clopton, of Clay-Street Baptist church. This was in March. We heard nothing on this brewery question for some time. Everything was quiet. We hear now that preparations are making by the company to carry out their original purpose.

Is there no law to prevent such an imposition? Have brewers all rights and other citizens none? Shall a nuisance, and worse than a nuisance, be placed in our midst? Are the protests of the property-holders and renters in this part of our city—the protests of the people who feel the deepest interest in the prosperity of the city and the welfare of her inhabitants—to be disregarded? If there is no law to protect us we would like to know it. The sooner the better. Regardless of party, the people will unite to elect mensober men—who will enact laws by which our families and our property can be protected. We appeal to our Council, to the Judge, and to all officials who have authority and influence to save us from this calamity and curse.
